

Measure to Remove Ohio State Trustees Proposed in Senate

Group Accused of "Stalling" in Selection of
New President
NEW 9-MEMBER BOARD PROPOSED

Bricker Non-Committal
On Franklin Countians
Program

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Feb. 15.—Removal of the Ohio State university board of trustees was sought today in the latest "ripper" legislation proposed in the Republican-dominated Ohio legislature.

Gov. John W. Bricker would be empowered to appoint a new nine-member board to succeed the seven present trustees by a bill introduced by Sen. Grant P. Ward (R-Franklin).

Says Board Is Stalling
Declaring that the board "has been stalling for a year" over the selection of a new president, Ward, an Ohio State alumnus, explained that his bill would pave the way for appointment of trustees who are alumni "and have the interest of the university at heart."

Meanwhile, in the house, legislators representing the 16 counties in the Muskingum watershed conservation district sought reconsideration of a bill to lighten the load of landowners assessed for $6,000,000 in costs of a flood control project.

The house taxation committee tabled the bill last night after securities dealers and bondholders declared that a two-year moratorium on the payment of property assessments, as proposed in the bill, would be a default of the taxpayers' obligations.

The university board of trustees is controlled, 4 to 3, by appointees of former Gov. Martin L. Davey. They have expressed a desire to look outside the university for a successor to Dr. George W. Rightmire, who retired last July 1.

Aimed At Future Governors
Ward said his bill would prevent future governors from obtaining control of the board.

His measure was introduced as the board's choice for a president was reported to have narrowed to Dr. Arthur H. Compton, noted physicist and Nobel Prize winner of the University of Chicago faculty, and Dr. J. Lewis Morrill, vice president of Ohio State. Dr. William McPherson has been acting president of the school since Dr. Rightmire resigned.

Ward declined to say whether his bill had the backing of the Bricker administration. Governor Bricker said he had not discussed the measure with anyone and had no plans for reorganizing the board.

As for the Muskingum conservancy bill, Rep. William O'Neill (R-Washington), a co-author, asserted his purpose was not to help the landowners who would benefit from the flood control project to avoid payment of the $6,000,000 in assessments.

Besides providing a moratorium, the bill would enable the property owners to pay the assessments on dates other than those on which regular real estate taxes are paid. The law now requires the total of both be paid at one time. Some property owners have refused to pay the assessments, but the regular taxes are not paid either.

"These assessments just can't be

FRANCE ORDERS MORE AIRCRAFT

More Than $100,000,000
Involved In All Contracts To Date

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—New French contracts for 415 warplanes increased to more than 1,200 today, the number of military aircraft which France and Great Britain have ordered from American manufacturers in eight months.

The French embassy announced the additional orders last night on the eve of the reopening of the senate military committee's inquiry into an earlier transaction.

The committee called Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, to testify and asked Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, to be present.

Asks Nature of Order

Senator Clark (D-Mo.) promptly raised the question of whether any of the new orders involved planes similar to the army craft wrecked recently in California.

The presence of an official of the French air mission aboard that plane started the senate investigation and touched off a congressional controversy over helping European democracies rearm.

Some authoritative sources said that 100 Douglas bombers in the new orders were of the type involved in the crash.

Col. Rene P. G. Weiser, air attaché at the French embassy, declared no military secrets were disclosed to the mission.

Meanwhile, the administration proposal to add 3,032 planes to the army air corps rolled toward virtually certain house approval in an atmosphere of unanimity reminiscent of early New Deal days.

The new French orders were distributed among three manufacturers. In addition to the Douglas ships, the contracts were for 115 Martin and 200 North American bombers.

Relic of Early Era In Lisbon Dug Up

LISBON, Feb. 15.—Workmen, repairing a leak in the village water mains at the intersection of West Washington and South Beaver sts., unearthed an interesting relic of the village early days.

Reaching a depth of five feet, the workmen's shovels struck a section of the town's first watermain—a hollowed section of cucumber tree bearing a wooden collar. A six-inch hole had been bored through the log to permit the flow of water.

It is believed the section was part of an old line connecting with an early reservoir near the point where Sherman street ends. While sections of the wooden piping have been excavated in the past, village officials said this was the first to appear with the coupling.

County Democrats Will Hear Limbach

LISBON, Feb. 15.—Arthur Limbach, state Democratic chairman, will address county precinct committeemen at a meeting to be held at the First Presbyterian church here Thursday evening.

Salem Quota Club Has Dinner Meeting

Miss Clara Finney and Miss Mona McArthur were in charge of Tuesday evening's dinner-meeting of the Quota club in the Memorial building.

Tables for the dinner were attractive with tiny bouquets of acacia as favors for the members and valentine and heart place cards.

Names of last year's "pals" were revealed in the heart cards and new ones distributed in the valentines.

Miss Alice Gladden, president; Miss Martha Wire, secretary; Mrs. Helen Brumbaugh, treasurer, and Miss Ruth Hoch, chorister, were presented corsages by the committee.

Members answered roll call by giving the names of famous persons with the same first name as their own.

The club will join the Alliance Quotarians in a celebration of the anniversary of Quota International in the Alliance Woman's club Feb. 27. The celebration will replace the regular meeting of the Salem group on that day.

Defense Program Lauded by Legion

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 15.—People of the United States stand more solidly behind measures for their country's defense now than probably at any other time since the World war, National Commander Stephen F. Chadwick of the American Legion said today.

Chadwick, back at national headquarters here from a tour of the midwest and east, said the current national defense week—between Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays—found the nation's defensive morale the highest in 20 years.

The reason is, he said, that Americans have seen how Ethiopia, China and Czechoslovakia lost out in dealings with warlike powers having strong military forces.

"The people are conscious of the fact," he observed, "that there are aggressor nations on the face of the earth and that we have to protect our liberties."

But he added, "there is no apoplectic disposition on their part to inject themselves into other people's affairs."

Cantonians Deny Federal Charges

CANTON, Feb. 15.—Mrs. Helen Poulos and Carl Cacioppo of Canton were released under $1,500 bond each after they pleaded not guilty in Cleveland yesterday before Federal Judge Paul Jones to a charge of counterfeiting. Sam Zafaras, arrested at the same time by federal agents in Canton, was held in default of bond. The three pleaded not guilty.

Edward C. Burgess, another alleged member of the Canton ring, pleaded guilty before Judge Jones. Sentence was deferred.

BRITISH BOOST BORROWING TO BUY MORE ARMS

Government Announces

BILLION DOLLARS

Considering Recognition

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Feb. 15.—The government announced today that its borrowing powers to finance Britain's huge rearmament program would be doubled, with the limit raised from 200,000,000 pounds ($1,000,000,000) to 400,000,000 pounds.

Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, told the house of commons that a bill would be introduced in the house to legalize this increase, which he said was needed to meet defense expenditures, expected to reach 500,000,000 pounds ($2,500,000,000) in 1939 alone.

When Britain's arms program was announced Feb. 16, 1937, the cost was set officially at $750,000,000 for five years, but subsequent statements by government leaders indicated that would be increased probably by as much as 50 per cent.

Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house that recognition of the insurgents as the legal government of Spain was "still under consideration" but the cabinet was reported to have agreed in principle on such action at an appropriate moment.

Official disclosure that Italy was shipping fresh troops to Libya increased the government's Mediterranean worries at a critical stage in the Spanish war.

The prime minister announced that Britain had ceased to sponsor any terms for ending the Spanish conflict. He said his government had made mediation efforts after the fall of Barcelona.

He mentioned both Italy's undertaking to get out of Spain at the end of the war and Adolf Hitler's promise at the Munich conference to "withdraw German volunteers whenever other countries were prepared to do the same."

SNOW REACHES 5-INCH DEPTH

Driving Hazardous This Morning; Temperature
Off Slightly

Winter returned to spring-minded Salem today with a heavy snowfall and a slight drop in temperature.

Driving conditions became hazardous overnight, state highway patrolmen reported.

A rain turned to snow at 2 a. m. today in Salem and by noon closed to five inches was recorded at the disposal plant. The rainfall measured .57 inches.

The temperature fell from 29 at midnight to 24 this morning.

Heavy snowfall also was reported near Cleveland, Akron and Cincinnati. There was a two-inch snowfall in southern Columbia county.

The second flood in two weeks was foreseen at Cincinnati, although U. S. Meteorologist W. G. Devereaux predicted the flood stage of 52 feet would be exceeded only slightly.

Temperatures generally were below the freezing mark throughout the state, with readings between 12 and 18 forecast for tonight.

Roosevelt Delays Court Appointment

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Belief that President Roosevelt would delay appointment of a new Supreme Court justice until after his Caribbean cruise was expressed today by senators who said they had inquired at the White House.

Mr. Roosevelt will leave tomorrow night to rest and to review fleet maneuvers. He will be gone about two weeks.

Western senators were pushing their campaign to have a man from that region appointed to replace Justice Louis D. Brandeis, who retired Monday after serving nearly 23 years on the high court.

Some administration followers in the senate, however, were expected to urge Mr. Roosevelt to ignore geographical considerations. In such a case, a name frequently mentioned was that of Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson, a New Yorker.

MARIETTA, Feb. 15.—Willis Mahoney climbed a tree when chased by an angry cat. And the cat followed Mahoney right up the tree and out on a limb.

200 AT BANQUET FOR BOY SCOUTS

Dads, Scouters Guests; Executive Felton Is
Speaker

Salem Boy Scouts, scouters and dads of the scouts turned out more than 200 strong at the Memorial building Tuesday night for the annual coverdish supper and meeting of the Salem district troops.

The program opened at 6.30, following invocation by Rev. C. P. Evans.

Thirty-one new scouts were inducted at an investiture service which was in charge of the Explorer patrol of troop No. 3 of the Presbyterian church. Tenderfoot badges were presented.

Charles E. Felton, county scout executive, spoke on "Scouting," and lauded the local troops for advancement during the past year, and presented "old trails" certificates to troops No. 2 of the Methodist church, No. 3 of the Presbyterian church, No. 47 of Homewood, and No. 56 of the Legion post.

These troops received the awards for organization and advancement made during an "old trails" contest held last November and December. Commissioner Eddie Howell explained. Another certificate was presented to Howell for the district as a whole.

Music during the evening was furnished by the High school brass quartet.

"Indian Trails" provided the topic for Dr. C. L. Smith, principal speaker, who recalled that years ago two Indian trails cut a path across Columbia county. One of these trails, he said, developed into what is now State Route 14. The other trail went through the region near Lisbon where the McKinley Boy Scout reservation is now situated.

The meeting concluded with motion pictures of the international jamboree in Holland a year ago. Some of the Salem scouts saw themselves, in another reel, taken at camp several years ago.

Proposed Bus Line Is Incorporated

Incorporation papers were granted by the secretary of state's office at Columbus today to the Kirby Lines, Inc., which has asked city council's permission to operate a city bus line here.

One hundred shares of no par stock will be retained by the incorporators. Thomas I. Kirby and sons, Thomas E. and Herbert W. Kirby, of Detroit. Thomas E. Kirby will operate the lines here if council grants a franchise.

The councilmen, at their regular meeting a week ago, went on record as being favorable to the establishment of bus lines.

The granting of a franchise could not be made until the firm had been incorporated under the Ohio laws.

There is a likelihood that a franchise ordinance will be presented at council's next meeting, Feb. 21.

DRASTIC SLASH IN PURCHASES IS ANNOUNCED

Germany, Britain Expected to Get Most of Business

OPEN BREACH ON IMPORTS IS SEEN

Argentine Minister Insists Action Is a
"Necessity"

(By Associated Press)

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 15.—Argentina ordered a sharp reduction in purchases from the United States today, and the implication was felt that Germany and Great Britain would get more of the business.

The announcement in morning newspapers by Pedro Groppo, minister of finance, appeared to have developed between the two richest American nations an open breach over trade—the base upon which United States Secretary of State Hull built the American good neighbor policy.

Groppo declared that United States imports must be reduced to "the level of three or four years ago" because the imports far overbalanced United States purchases of Argentine goods.

Wanted Trade Balance

The minister indicated Argentina could not accept a most-favored nation treaty offered by the United States but wanted a bi-lateral agreement to strike a trade balance—a treaty similar to that which Argentina already has with a number of European countries.

A reduction of imports to previous levels would mean a cut of 40 per cent from 1938 figures or about $31,000,000.

Groppo's announcement was published as a half-page advertisement in morning newspapers. It insisted that the reduction—to be effected by withholding import permits—was not discrimination in behalf of European countries but a necessity.

Britain, biggest investor in Argentina and her best customer, has been pressing Argentina to accept more British goods to maintain debt interest payments.

Germany Makes Offers

Germany, dynamic third customer-seller, has been offering to take vast quantities of wheat and beef in barter for German-manufactured products.

Many United States importers here, with the announcement of definite plans by the government, despaired of maintaining their position on the Argentine market in the face of rapidly increasing German business and Britain's long-established supremacy.

Woman, 70, Tears Up "Contract to Die"

TOLEDO, Feb. 15.—Publicity and pride appeared today to have turned a 70-year-old woman from self-destruction to a firmer grip on life.

A funeral contract dating from 1934 was torn up by the woman, whom a funeral director refused to identify.

She told the undertaker last Wednesday she intended to "complete" the contract—"finish this thing," because she was poverty stricken. He implored that she wait a week. She agreed.

Then a newspaper published the incident. Came a shower of job offers.

An irate "party of the first part" returned to the funeral establishment yesterday. She asserted the public's response to unwanted publicity was ill disguised charity.

She ripped the contract to bits. (P. S.: Police have received no report on an aged suicide.)

PUNCTURED

If it's a little easier to get along after Feb. 14 each year, credit belongs to the comic valentine.

Perhaps if a batch of them could be distributed once a month, instead of only once a year, things would be a lot easier.

Nothing gets results like a pin prick of ridicule applied in the right place at the right time. It prevents bloating.

Thanks to the valentine makers, pins can be obtained ready-made. This keeps them from being personal. It convinces the victim that if there are enough others like himself to warrant a valentine directed specifically at his weaknesses, his type must be a blot of nastiness.

One pin prick may not be enough to wake him up. If he's stubborn send him a couple more comic valentines. The valentine vendors will be glad to help a good cause along.

A PLAN

A plan envisaging the ultimate departure from Germany of all Jews theoretically able to create new opportunities for themselves has been submitted by George S. Rubie, American director of refugee work. It is supposed to have the approval of the Hitler government.

Two things about the plan stand out. One is the fact that its expense would have to be borne by Jews, rather than by the government which is persecuting them. It is a strictly commercial proposition. The Jews would go, but their wealth would stay.

The other is that neither this plan nor any other plan has any assurance of being followed, other than that given by a government which is dedicated to Jewish persecution. At any moment, depending on the whim of an official, persecution may break out anew. It even may be questioned whether the Nazis want to deprive themselves of their favorite scapegoat.

MEN, TOO

For a reason which isn't easy to discover, the men who are going to fly the super-airplanes that will blot out the sun in the next war have been left to the imagination.

An occasional reminder, such as the crash of a new U. S. army pursuit plane after a record transcontinental flight, brings the situation down to earth, including the airplanes.

Apparently the pilot of the pursuit plane was too worn out after his feat to land safely. It was but one of many little noticed incidents where airplanes outlasted the men flying them.

It is unlikely any one nation ever will be able to raise a class of supermen capable of flawlessly doing the ghastly things outlined for military airplanes, at the expense of any other nation's aviators.

They all will be fallible; they all will get tired; they all will make mistakes. It even is conceivable that, being members of a highly skilled group, they might employ their group consciousness to rebel against doing what seems to be expected of them.

DESPERATE CHARACTERS

Sign of spring approaching: The annual red hunt has been started on the campus of Ohio State University. The trustees have voted to conduct an investigation, and a resolution charging that un-American doctrines are being circulated in university circles has been introduced in the state senate.

Richard Taylor, who writes a column in The Ohio State Lantern, campus daily, says college boys could have a lot of fun if they weren't taken too seriously. A few days after the red hunt got under way, he reports, a fraternity house was bedecked with a banner proclaiming it was "Communists' Headquarters." On one end of the banner appeared "Hell Yes," and on the other end "Hell No."

But was this funny? No. So many telephone calls came in that the banner came down. No un-American stuff, or has chucking, too, become un-American? Anyway, when this begins to happen in Columbus, spring isn't far distant. Ho hum. Who wants to be un-American when the sun turns warm?

WAR GUILT

Secretary of State Hull is the latest official spokesman to point out that the United States, while providing a proper defense, will continue its "unflinching" efforts to prevent war.

Mr. Hull does not believe this government should initiate an arms limitation conference, preferring to put his faith in efforts to lessen the provocations behind the guns.

This attitude, which seems reasonable to his countrymen, may not be so easily understandable abroad. Japan, for instance, last week took steps to increase its naval strength in retaliation for this government's naval development program.

In Europe, furthermore, the United States has been accused of taking an unnecessarily belligerent attitude. It seems questionable sometimes whether this country is giving the impression that it is trying to prevent war. Its "unflinching" efforts in behalf of peace seem to be escaping attention.

It is tremendously important that everything possible be done to make them conspicuous, for the sake of populations in countries whose governments are openly aggressive. There must be no opportunity, if war occurs, to question where war guilt belongs. The charge must be pinned squarely on governments seeking new territory by force.

Now one of the Tokio newspapers has decided to blot out the American fleet. We presume this country is supposed to tremble.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, Feb. 16

The sidereal operations for this day seem to put the accent on private affiliations, with much stirring by way of jollification, celebration and easy ways for spending in personal extravagance or indulgence. Be discreet in this particular, for in a business aspect there may be much to be gained by attention to affairs of importance. Diplomacy, tact, even undercover agreements may figure greatly to the advantage. Let prudence, not over-confidence, assist to major decisions.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very important year, although major affairs, calling for decisive action and wise judgment, may be highlighted by much festivity and social celebration. But be wise in avoiding excessive indulgence and unjustified extravagance. Superiors and influential persons should be approached with prudence and diplomacy rather than ostentation, overconfidence and assurance.

A child born on this day may be splendidly endowed with business talents as well as social graces to make a fine success of its life. However, a proclivity of extravagance, show, boastfulness and self-indulgence should be dealt with in early life.

IN BEHALF OF MISSIONS

CLEVELAND, Feb. 15.—Bishop Beverly D. Tucker of the Episcopal diocese of Ohio sees in support for foreign missions "a contribution to the solution of international ill will and conflict."

The bishop addressed more than 300 clerical and lay delegates yesterday at the 122nd annual convention of the diocese.

He urged larger parishes to "lend their aid in greater measure" to missionary extension.

"I want to think primarily, not in terms of saving money by closing up missions and small churches," said the bishop, "but in terms of developing the spiritual resources of this diocese which are latent in the less conspicuous missions and parishes."

The budget approved for the coming year will restore a 10 per cent cut in appropriations for mission work in the diocese.

The Rev. Paul R. Savanack, Cleveland rector who formerly was stationed at Sandusky, was elected diocesan secretary, succeeding Archdeacon Garard P. Patterson, who retired last December after serving 20 years.

W. G. Mather of Cleveland was renamed treasurer of the diocese. Six men elected as representatives to the diocesan council included Rev. G. Russel Hargate of Port Clinton and Homer Glesser of Canton.

Those named delegates to the synod of the mid-west included Mr. Hargate and J. A. Nelson of Mount Vernon.

Members of the diocesan standing committee include Russell A. Ramsey of Sandusky.

Instead of fortifying Guam, away off there by itself, it seems to us it would be much simpler to take a dredge and a couple mud scows and move it to a safer and not so isolated neighborhood.

PLAN HEARINGS ON HEALTH BILL

Senate To Act On Palmer Proposal To Eliminate Bang's Disease

COLUMBUS, Feb. 15.—First public hearings on an emergency senate bill to control and eradicate Bang's disease in cattle are expected to be held during the week of Feb. 20, according to Senator Ray Palmer, Barnsville, its sponsor.

Administration of the program, if the bill is enacted, will be in the hands of the state department of agriculture, division of animal industry, and the U. S. department of agriculture, bureau of animal industry, cooperating.

The bill provides for a program similar to that adopted in the successful campaign for eradication and control of tuberculosis in cattle with compensation for condemned cattle figured on the same basis as for tuberculosis reactors.

Two-thirds the difference between the appraised value and the value of the gross salvage including the sum paid by the United States department of agriculture, which will cooperate.

Burden of the fight against Bang's disease, said to be a source of undulant fever in man, has been entirely in Ohio by the U. S. department of agriculture, which during the last four years has spent approximately $2,350,000 in this state. Should the Palmer bill be enacted the Bang's eradication program would be carried on under a $50,000 financial basis by the Ohio and U. S. departments of agriculture.

Ohio's budget appropriation to finance this state's share will not be determined until the bill has been disposed of by the legislature.

The bill, as introduced, provides for township or county area testing when petitioned for by 75 per cent of cattle owners in the area. Testing will be by veterinarians assigned to the area by the cooperating departments.

Petitions for area testing are to be filed with the department of agriculture which then files them with the auditor of the county involved where they will be open to public inspection at all times.

No tests will be undertaken until ordered by the department of agriculture. Availability of funds for the test must also be certified by the department.

The bill provides for marking of tested cattle to designate whether the animal is healthy or a reactor; provides for quarantine of infected or suspected cattle; for licensing of vaccine dealers; and establishes fines of $50 to $300, or not more than one year imprisonment, or both, for violations including deliberate inoculation of cattle with anything which might make them react falsely to the Bang's disease test.

Sun's Returning, Get Your Share Of It, Urges Doctor

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
The winter solstice is behind us and the days of sunshine are returning.

The sun has always been regarded as the giver of life. For the Egyptians it was the supreme god. The Greek legend of Persephone tells of the annual return of that maiden from the lower world of darkness, welcoming back the sun, to charge into renewal the fruits, the flowers and the plants of the earth.

But we humans, just as much as the plants, need the sun and respond to its beneficent rays. Nay,

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

more, according to Michelet, the great French historian, who said "Of all flowers, it is the human flower, which has the greatest need of the sun."

Modern science has furnished a reasonable explanation of these ancient beliefs. They are not superstitious, but can be put into exact mathematical statements of facts.

Bottled Energy
When you build a fire in the grate during the winter evenings, you have simply unbottled the solar energy which the coal or the wood, or the gas, or the oil, absorbed and stored many years ago. The movements that we make with our muscles are nothing else; simply the release of solar energy as it was stored up by plants and which we obtained in our food.

The story is told of the inventor, George Stevenson, who was watching one of the locomotives which his genius helped to perfect. "Answer me a question," he said, turning to his companion. "What sort of force is it that drives that train along?" "I should think it was the force of the engine," answered his friend. "No," said Stevenson, "sunlight."

Stored In Earth
"I assure you it is nothing else," he continued. "It is light that has lain stored in the earth for many thousands of years. The light absorbed by the plant during its growth is essential to the condensation of carbon and this light which has been buried in the coal for so many years, is now unearthed and being freed again, as in this locomotive, and serves great human ends."

This return of the sun with all of its powers for renewing energy properly renews our enthusiasm for life. Go out and get as much of it as you can. It is good for your body, good for blood, bones, skin—all the vitalizing processes of life. And the world outside your own body is renewing the vital forces of plants and animals, making chemical changes which before long will be utilized by your body for growth and health and strength.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. R.: "Can you please tell me whether 4 ounces of orange juice given daily to a baby 20 months old is too much? Can I still keep giving her strained, canned baby foods?"

Answer: Four ounces of orange juice is decidedly not too much for a baby 20 months old. Strained, canned baby foods are all right but at that age it is advisable to start having babies go on solid foods. Superior growth is helped by increasing the solid food as rapidly as the digestion will be able to take it.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendenning can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, 233 W. 45th st., New York City. Turn About in States' Rights

"ENVOY EXTRAORDINARY"

CHAPTER XIV

"I beg your lordship's pardon," the old butler announced, "but Dr. Andrews assured me that the message was an urgent one. Will you speak to him for a minute?"

"May I ask to be excused for a moment?" Matresser begged. "You all know your way about. I think. Don't hurry them off. Bemrose, but I daresay the ladies would like some bridge. There's the billiard room going, too, and the radio I shall only be a few minutes. Andrews seems to want a little advice."

"Is it that I can be of any assistance?" Mr. van Westheene asked, and if it was possible for expression to creep into his stately voice there was a certain wistfulness in it.

Matresser shook his head.

"It is merely an official decision, I expect," he replied. "I am chairman of the Bench of Magistrates for this division of the County and Andrews naturally does not want to make a mistake."

The doctor was without a doubt suffering badly from nerves. He was walking up and down Matresser's den when the latter entered, still wearing the clothes in which he had started the day's shooting, and by this time presenting a more or less dishevelled appearance.

"My dear fellow," Matresser reproached, "what on earth's the matter with you?"

His visitor made an obvious attempt to pull himself together and sank into the easy chair which Matresser had wheeled out for him.

"It's a rotten business, this," Matresser he exclaimed. "It has worked out badly. I get worse every minute I think of it."

"Well, let's talk it over sensibly. Whiskey and soda, eh? And light your pipe."

Matresser supplied his guest's wants and sat on the edge of the table by his side.

"Now fire away," he enjoined. "Our patient has stolen a march on us. I gather, and pegged out unexpectedly."

"He was dead when I got home."

"And you are worrying about having left him?"

"It's not only that. Frankly, I cannot understand it. I did all the usual things when he was first brought in—temperature, pulse, blood pressure—and I put him down as a strongman able to stand a tap on the head like he received, sleep off easily with a mild sedative, which is all that I gave him, and be none the worse for it in two or three days time. When they fetched me back from Otley Wood this afternoon, he was stone dead and certain entirely new symptoms must have developed during the day. Well, I telephoned to the hospital at Norwich and got Ridgeway. He was here within an hour and a half and at first he was just as puzzled as I was. There was apparently not the slightest reason why the man should have died."

"And then?"

"Well, we took off his clothes and there were evidences of a puncture high up on his arm. Ridgeway could not tell what had been injected any more than I could, but there were other conditions of the body which made it absolutely necessary to have an autopsy."

"Well, there's no need for you to worry yourself to death," Matresser consoled him. "No one is going to accuse you of carelessness. You didn't give him that particular injection I don't suppose."

"Not likely," the doctor exclaimed. "Look here, Matresser, this is the devil of it. Mrs. Foulds had washed his neck and arms when we put him to bed on Monday. The injection must have been administered since then and Ridgeway and I both believe—the doctor hesitated.

"You believe he died from the effects of the injection?"

"We do."

"In short, that he was murdered."

"I'm afraid that is the truth of it."

"Very well, then let's face the facts," Matresser continued, with a cheerfulness which was not without its effect upon his listener. "We will rule you and Mrs. Foulds out of it. The possibilities seem to be myself or that someone else who drove by in a car without any lights while we were on our way to see the fellow. Supposing you rule me out for a moment, as might seem not unreasonable, then there is only that person who nearly succeeded in running us down. Is there any evidence to connect him with any human being we know of?"

"Not the slightest," was the doctor's almost savage reply.

"Well, there you are then," Matresser observed. "We have a local police force. There is no necessity for you or for me to go playing the amateur detective. Leave it to the police. There will have to be an inquest, of course."

"I suppose so," the doctor assented. "But Matresser—"

"Well?"

"You will have to be one of the witnesses."

"Naturally. So will you for that matter."

"What are we going to say about that car?"

"Just what we know—what we saw and heard. It doesn't amount to much, does it?"

"You think we ought to mention it?"

"My dear fellow," Matresser reminded him. "An inquest is a place where you are on your oath. Of course we must mention it."

The room was by no means overheated, but Andrews was wiping the sweat from his forehead. He groaned as he became aware that his companion had noticed his discomfort.

"I can't help it, Matresser," he burst out. "The only person I know of who has a small car and who might have been going in that direction is Mademoiselle Stamler."

"Is that all that's troubling you?" Matresser asked.

"Not by any means," the doctor went on volubly enough now that the ice was broken. "The fellow was bringing a letter or papers or a message here for you. His name may have been Fergus but he looked like a foreigner and in the eyes of the people round here he was a foreigner. The only other person likely to have been out in a motor car was Mademoiselle Stamler. She also is a foreigner. The car that was being driven dangerously along this road must have been going either to the port or the Great House. If I am put on my oath I shall have to remember that I have known Mademoiselle Stamler driving without lights before."

"What became of the remainder of the things that were found in the fellow's pockets?" Matresser asked.

"The police have them."

"There was nothing beyond the fact that I knew who he was to identify him, then?"

"Nothing."

"You didn't at any time ask him his real name for instance?"

The doctor shook his head.

"I was not sufficiently interested," he admitted.

Matresser glanced at the clock.

"I shall have to be off, Andrews," he said. "My opinion is that you are making a mountain out of a mole-hill. The man is dead and what you have to do is just to pull yourself together, face the questions you have to answer like a man and answer them truthfully. I am not anxious to have this thing linked up with the Great House. I can tell you, but it is one of those times when we have to tell the truth. There's no harm can come to you at any rate."

"Or to you, Matresser?"

"Or to Mademoiselle Elisabeth Stamler," Matresser declared. "You can make your mind quite easy about that."

The doctor drew a long breath of relief.

Matresser, notwithstanding his long absence from such duties, proved himself an excellent dinner host. He saw that the bridge tables were going smoothly, finished rather brilliantly a snooker match for Bemrose, who had been called to the telephone, and he even made up an odd three at contract with the Dean and his wife and the clergyman of the parish. Presently, when the local guests had mostly taken their leave, he wandered into the smaller drawingroom adjoining his mother's boudoir where Elisabeth was playing the piano. He motioned her to continue and sank into a chair by his mother's side.

"Debussy," he murmured. "What a touch! Shall we listen?"

His mother nodded. He took her fragile fingers in his and stroked them softly. Presently the melody faded away.

"Do go on," he begged.

"If you wish that I play seriously," she said, "I must fetch my music. You excuse—yes?"

"Of course, my dear," Lady Matresser acquiesced. "You are giving us so much pleasure. We shall be here waiting for you."

She smiled and disappeared through the parted curtains—an exquisitely graceful figure in her simply cut white satin gown.

"You were satisfied today, Ronald?" his mother asked a little anxiously.

"More than satisfied, my dear," he assured her. "I took all the outside I could and I couldn't find a single spot where the shoot has been neglected in any way. Humphreys seems to be just as good as he was ten years ago and both his sons are capital fellows."

"Because if you were really going to settle down—and you are," she insisted, "you must have your shooting perfect. You know there's nothing to prevent it. You have been drawing absolutely no income for the last two or three years. Mr. Purvis tells me that you keep him quite busy investing."

"Capital!" Matresser exclaimed. "We'll show him something when we start entertaining mother."

"Bemrose is looking forward to that time, I can tell you," she went on. "It has been rather hard on him the last few years. An expensive family, too, and three unmarried daughters. I know when your father had the County, and that was before my money came into the family, he used to find that it squeezed him. Who was this mysterious stranger, Ronald, who came and died upon us, or rather upon poor Doctor Andrews?"

"No one knows for certain," he told her, "but between ourselves I believe he came here to see me—rather to bring me an invitation. In the language of Humphreys he was a furriner. It shows what a self enclosed county we are—everyone who looks or dresses a little differently is a 'furriner'."

"The most remarkable 'furriner' you have produced here for a very long time is your Dutchman," the Countess observed. "I can't believe he is real half the time. He is so enormous, so unbending and so precise. How is it one has not heard of him before?"

"I never saw him myself until the night of the storm," Matresser confided. "He has been spending the last eight or ten years, he told me, cruising. After I had asked him to dine, I wondered whether I ought to have told him that we should be wearing tails."

"He looked the picture of civilization tonight," Lady Matresser observed.

"Might have been turned out for a royal dinner party," Matresser agreed. "Clever fellow to carry a wardrobe as comprehensive as that on a fifty-ton ketch."

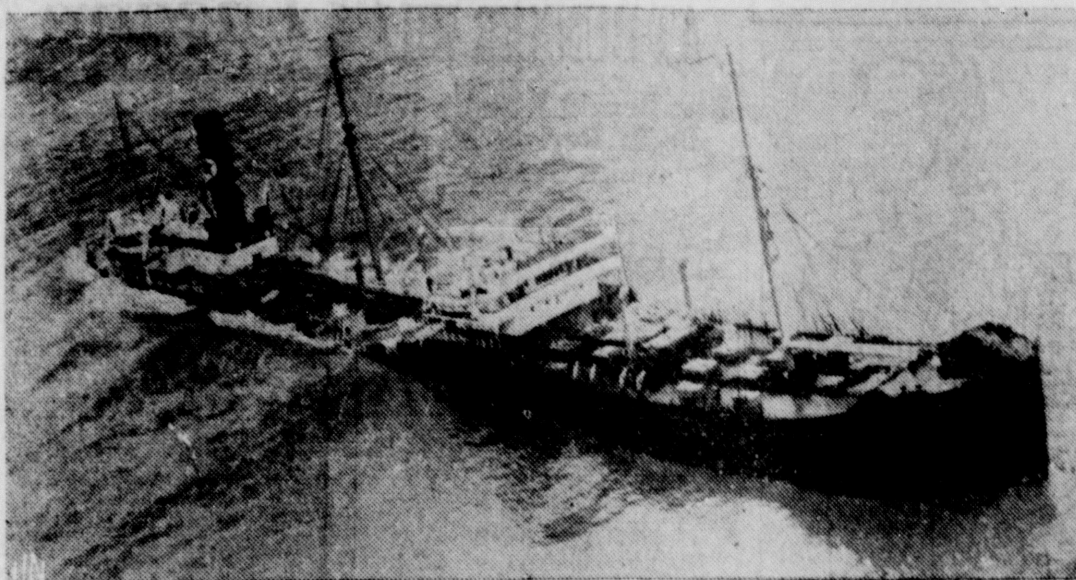

"Did you know anything about him, Ronald, before you asked him to dine?"

"Not a thing. That's the worst of having a son reappear from the wilds. I suppose I ought not to have done such a thing. He came to pay his respects, which, after all, is the courteous thing to do—if a little un-English—but the harbor is mine, the port and all the rest of it, and it seemed so natural to ask him to shoot, and nearly everyone who shoots at Matresser's dines. So there you are!"

"My dear, don't think for a moment that I was criticizing," his mother protested with a delightful sigh. "It was sheer curiosity. As a matter of fact, everyone was saying what a marvelous shot he was."

SCOUTS RALLY AT COLUMBIANA

Observe Anniversary of Scout Movement with Dinner, Program

COLUMBIANA, Feb. 15.—Boy Scout troop No. 16 observed the 29th anniversary of scouting Monday evening with a covered dinner and a program in the dining room of the Methodist church.

Parents of Scouts, members of the troop committee and their wives and several guests were present.

H. H. Detwiler presided over the program, which included an investiture service for a new Scout, Harry Case, in charge of Scoutmaster C. C. Coppeck and Assistant Scoutmaster Henry Vaughn; trumpet solos by Clair King, accompanied by Dorothy Poulton; short talks by County Scout Executive Chas. E. Felton, President Judge Lodge Riddle, Lisbon, Rev. J. C. Wilson and Judge H. W. Hammond, national representative, and an address by Rev. J. W. Grohne, pastor of the Leetonia Lutheran church, who spoke on the two anniversaries of Lincoln's birthday and the Boy Scout movement.

Felton also showed two reels of motion pictures depicting a national scout jamboree and activities at a Columbiana county scout camp. Everett Warwick was welcomed as a new assistant scoutmaster of troop 16.

At the meeting of the Columbiana Rotary club Monday evening at Valley Golf club, Judge H. W. Hammond gave a talk on "Little Known Facts About Lincoln." Visitors were: Hiram McGrath, Paul Reeves and Rotarian William Gutknecht, Youngstown; and Adam Smith, Salem. Next Monday's meeting will be held in the American Legion hall, when the club will join with the American Legion in the annual Washington's birthday banquet.

Among the moments of sheer excitement in the film are the bare-handed capture and "bronco-busting" of infuriated African wild elephants; mysterious manhood rites performed on forest tribe boys; walking on lava that bursts into fire at the slightest touch; giant dancers—every one over 7 feet tall—in sweeping, onrushing formations of tribal orgy; pygmies building a bridge across the stream without going near the water; long-headed people whose heads are bound from birth; men subjecting themselves to flogging to win female recognition; the man who danced himself into a frenzied ecstasy to win the approval of his 440 wives and many other fascinating sequences.

Nurse Story Concludes

"Four Girls in White" a story of the nursing profession, with Florence Rice, Ann Rutherford, Una Merkel, Mary Howard, Alan Marshal, Buddy Ebsen and Kent Taylor, concludes tonight at the State.

A mystery, "The Last Warning," with Preston Foster and Frank Jenks, and a new Jack Holt story, "The Strange Case of Dr. Meade," made up the double bill at the Grand tonight.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worry about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.

Just get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a reliable "WOMAN'S" tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and those disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. Pinkham's is WELL WORTH trying.

Another indication of administra-

Says Civilian Planes Encounter Little Danger In Flights Over Spanish Area

BY WELDON JAMES

NEW YORK — Flying into war-torn Spain from France is a ticklish business in the imagination.
You would think it risky, with the warring air fleets dotting the skies almost every day. But as I discovered in June, 1938, when I went to Spain from the Far East, civilian planes encountered little danger on their scheduled flights.
That peaceful flight, from Toulouse down to Barcelona and Valencia, was my first glimpse of the amazingly normal way life goes on in a country wracked by more than two years of bitter internal warfare.

There was an air-raid an hour after I reached Valencia. You could feel the floor shake as the first bombs struck some blocks away. I hurried to the window to see how quickly crowds of strolling civilians might be dashing for shelter.
Instead, I saw the civilians still strolling. One or two were staring apprehensively skyward, but the rest were going about their business as imperturbably as though they were in New York.

Two Reactions In Raids

Then, and in scores of similar bombardments, I learned the habi-tuated reaction of the Spanish to an air-raid alarm: (a) take a look at the sky, (b) if the attacking planes are headed straight for your section, duck into a building, a trench, or a bomb-proof shelter; (c) if their line-of-flight isn't near you, don't bother.
There are, of course, two tragic sides to this picture. When the bombs fall before an alarm can be sounded, and when the raids are at night. In the first case, as fatistastic Spaniards will tell you ambly, there's not much point in worrying. In the second, the population of most cities is divided.

To Tour U. S. Again

Ignace Jan Paderewski

Poland's celebrated pianist, Ignace Jan Paderewski, 78, is to inaugurate his 20th concert tour of the United States, Sunday, Feb.
26, in New York. He will give the first of 22 public concerts in Newark, N. J., March 1, followed by appearances in cities from coast to coast.

NORWALK—The "Lovers' Lane"

of Norwalk, which had been converted into an unsuccessful rabbit-breeding grounds by the state, will be returned to its original status if residents are successful in their efforts to convert it into a state park.
DOVER, Del.—Interest in aviation has increased in Delaware during the past year. There were 20 more licensed pilots and 18 more airplanes in the state on Jan. 1 than on the same date of 1938.
The totals gave 64 pilots and 56
airplanes.

Many, Including Women and Children, Will Dash Through Dark Streets to "Refugees"

perhaps of dashing out five times trust in the Almighty or the law of averages and go back to sleep.
Although the Spaniards have learned to be nonchalant in air raids, and have succeeded in making their way of life seem normal, the terror still remains close to them. But as a people they have a mental sturdiness and a natural dignity. They do not openly grieve over their troubles.
Children Under-Nourished
At the fronts there is a different story. In the cities, too, there is the anguish that comes from empty pantries. Malnutrition is evident, and little children are thin-boned and white-faced, either from lack of food or as a result of the same diet which lacks variety.
But for most Spaniards these things are tucked away in the mind.
The success they have had in executing this mental maneuver is,
I believe, their greatest accomplishment of the war.
Life must move normally, and to the eyes of any outside observer, it does. Children are sent off to school each morning. They flock to the playgrounds when they get out.
Cinema houses open at 11 in the morning, and they are always packed—although the films are of pre-war vintage Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," the latest plays, the newest vaudeville hodge-podge,
an orchestra concert—these draw their nightly devotees. The sidewalk cafes are filled with talka-tive dons and gay young señoritas, who still use lipstick and rouge.
There is still wine to be drunk
Barber shops and shoeshine stands have waiting lines (gayer than those at food stations); the Spaniard is still inordinately proud of his appearance.

EAR "TRUMPET" IS STILL SOLD

It's Streamlined A Little
But It's Generally
The Same

Cincinnati, Feb. 15.—Streamlined a little but generally the same, the old-fashioned ear-trumpet still is in demand.

"We still sell a dozen or so a year of one type or another," reported E. D. Koch, advertising man ager of a surgical equipment firm here. "There are some people who won't use anything else."

But Koch agreed, the demand isn't what it used to be. Electrical devices have so usurped the place of the old trumpet and its allied aids to hearing that the company doesn't manufacture them — and hasn't since 1910. Current supplies come from abroad.

The old tin-horn isn't any more,
although there is a little bugle-like device of metal still to be had.
Most, however, are made of plastic or rubber.

Nor is there the infinite variety of the Gay Nineties era when the trumpet type really held sway after gradual development through 100 years or more.

The old fan device is gone, for instance. That was a fan-shaped piece of resonant material which the user held in one hand, pressing one edge against the teeth. Sound which caused the "fan" to vibrate was transmitted through the teeth and bones of the head.

A possible hitch to the matter,
Koch presumed, was that it didn't

Covert, Finley Take Lead In Doubles With Score Of 1257

MEIER'S SCORE STILL TOPS IN SINGLES PLAY

G. Hoover, Columbiana, Hits 642 to Cop 2nd In Individual Event

A 1257 score moved Paul Covert and Bill Finley of the Salem Eagles road team into first place in the doubles event of the fourth annual City Handicap Tenpin tournament at the Masonic temple alleys last night.

Covert and Finley grabbed the leading position from Bill Pauline and Keith Harris, who set the doubles pace on Monday night with a 1253 count. The Pauline-Harris score is still good for second money.

Finley turned in a 607 series in actual pins on games of 216, 156 and 235, while Covert totaled 557. The pair was allowed 93 pins handicap.

Five other changes were made in the doubles, but only one or two of these figure to hold up until the end of the week when the doubles event will close.

Pauline, who paired with Harris to lead Monday night's session, combined his talents with Mike Hutter to hit 1205 last night. This score is good for fifth place, ranking behind Albert Wright and Bob Warren, who took over fourth position with 1206, and Cowher and Murray, who hold third place on a 1217 count recorded Monday night.

Take Sixth Place

F. W. Davis and Adam Smith went into sixth place with 1171, while Merle White and Bob Tubbs stepped into seventh position with 1161. Herb Brown and Don Parks hit 1148 for ninth place and Mark Klingensmith and Wilbur Eaton of Columbiana chalked up 1146 for tenth position, the last in the prize list.

Johnny Meier remained in the lead in the singles with the 661 score he turned in Monday night, but second place changed hands as G. Hoover of Columbiana rolled 642 to climb into the runner-up berth. Hoover combined games of 182, 204 and 205 with a 51-pin handicap to gain second place.

John Burns went into a tie for a third place by hitting 636 on games of 188, 197 and 191 combined with a 60-pin handicap. Burns is tied with Ralph Phillips who hit 636 Monday night.

Bowling of Columbiana lived up to his name by bowling into a tie for fifth on a 635 score. Eaton of Columbiana took over seventh place with a 623 count.

Pope's Kin Mourns His Death

Among the thousands of Catholics in New England mourning death of the "Pope of Peace" is Mrs. Anselma Toneatti, 59, of Gloucester, Mass., one of five blood relatives now living in the United States. Her father was a second cousin of Pope Pius XI, about whose death she is reading.
